Alberti, Lupton & Co., Ltd

An independent family-run firm for 'Five Generations'

FROM A SMALL HUT TO A CENTURY-STRONG LEGACY: The Story of Alberti, Lupton

The story of the company goes back to 1911, when William Lupton – a skilled young memorial mason with a wife and baby son – found himself out of work after the company he worked for ceased trading.

At the time, William and his family lived in Thatched House Row, just off Moston Lane, close to St Joseph's Cemetery. The Alexian Brothers, who ran the cemetery that had opened in 1877, recognised William's craftsmanship and entrusted him with the contract to inscribe the public graves. After setting himself up in a small hut within the cemetery grounds, William was soon joined by two brothers: Philip and John Alberti, who were following in the footsteps of their own father, a sculptor.

Together, the three men formed Alberti, Lupton & Co., Ltd, which has been trading outside St Joseph's Cemetery ever since. The yard and offices on Moston Lane are only a stone's throw from where William once lived and from where the first names were carved more than a century ago.
